

Economics Tutor

Sam joined the team at JTC Education to help with all things economics. He strongly believes in teaching foundational concepts as well as interesting applications of economics in the real world. All this is with the aim of instilling a deeper understanding of the subject in each student. Once understanding has been reached, exams are no longer a test of memory, but a simple question of articulating one's understanding clearly. Sam is a firm believer in creating plans and organising students so as to sculpt a path to success. He emphasises that working consistently throughout the year is key and that plenty of practice on past papers, followed by feedback, is critical in improving longer written responses in economics.
